Description
It would be great feature I think if you could quickly mention someone in the wiki pages and anywhere else using syntax like @johndoe and after page is saved it would make a link to their user info and send a notification to them that they were mentioned on the object.

It should also respect the "show realName" preference when enabled.

Requirements:
• Needs to check if the @ is at the beginning of line, or surrounded by whitespace to not catch regular e-mail addresses
• Needs to match only one @ followed immediately by the username (login name)
• Optionally it would be nice if it matched also mentions in common parenthesis like (@username)
  without need to surround them by space
