Description

After updating to 15.alpha found a problem in the login module in the default mode (module) Both the user form-group and pass form-group divs has an height of 0, messing everything up. Maby It's something about Box-sizing: border-box; not allowing it's area to adapt to its size? Tested without any custom css applied, and it persists.

Here's the Html:

<form name="loginbox" class="form" id="loginbox-2"
action="http://www.foo.bar/tiki-login.php" method="post" autocomplete="off"> <div
class="user form-group"> <label class="col-sm-4" for="loginuser_2">Usuário:</label>

            <input class="form-control" type="text"
name="user" id="login-user_2">

        <label class="col-sm-4" for="login-pass_2">Senha:</label>

            <input onkeypress="capLock(event, this)"
type="password" name="pass" class="form-control col-sm-8" id="login-pass_2">

                 CapsLock ligado.

```

The computed style:

I'll try to fix it here, but not sure if I will learn how to commit soon enough for the release of the v15

The log-in form is ok in my local branch 15 site. Could you make a show instance, maybe?

Fernando Torres 30 Apr 16 20:07 GMT-0000

It`s working now in 15.0. Probably has been fixed already Thanks
