Description
    Chose a non-default workspace:

   Open File Gallery and upload a file:

    Choose the file and see that the checkbox marking the category corresponding to the workspace is checked:

    The file is uploaded:

    Browse the file gallery - it is empty, where did the file go?

Open the file gallert from the default perspective (workspace), the file is shown, thus, it was uploaded:

Let's see its properties:

It doesn't belong to the category it was said to belong during the upload:

We add it to the category that we intended it to belong to:

We switch back to the desired workspace, open the file gallery, our file is there:

Very low usability!

Solution

Added a fix in r59359 in trunk. If all is good, we will backport to 15.x.

Thanks for the fix. Working for 15.x, please, backport.

_

Backported to 15.x with r59363

Thanks Roman. Bug confirmed also when using categories out of jailroot or workspaces, just simple file upload and seelcting a category for it doesn't remember the category selection once the file is saved.

And confirmed this was working as expected in Tiki 12, so that this is a "regression".

If you can confirm that a bug you hit is a regression from a previous working version, do so (tag is as such) since it will receive more attention by other developers who introduced new features or changes to fix their own regressions.

Thanks for the report!
