Description

Newsletters (in Firefox and Chrome) do not show the list of emails being sent to, that page where the list got updated as emails where being sent.

In Chrome they are shown as usual (as in 12.x)

Using Firefox 46 on GNU/Linux 64 bit (Ubuntu 16.04).

Got it while testing this issue:

"Newsletter fails to be sent properly if article clipping is involved"

<https://dev.tiki.org/item6040>

Throttling was in use, in case this matters.

Reproduced in tiki.org

https://tiki.org/tiki-send\_newsletters.php?nId=7

---

Update: using 16.x in t.o sites, and Chromium: I can't see the list of emails being sent either. (and unclear if all people receive the newsletter, but that is another story - even if that makes uncertain whether we are communicating properly security releases to all t.o-news-and-releases-newsletters subscribers )

Workaround

Set server side the apache config X-Frame-Options to SAMEORIGIN (= allow to load iframes from same origin) instead of DENY.

See:

https://developer.mozilla.org/en-US/docs/Web/HTTP/Headers/X-Frame-Options#Configuring\_Apache

For some reason, you may have this setting several times in your apache configuration file, so you need to change them all to SAMEORIGIN. That seemed to be the case in t.o server, for instance
