Description

Configuration Wizard, setting not applied (WYSIWYG) on the HomePage, the very first page Admin will land and will want to change.

Tested on new install of Tiki15.x, 16.x and trunk.

Step to reproduce:

Install Tiki : tiki-install.php.

At the end of the install go to Configuration Wizard to Select Editor type.

Enable WYSIWYG => save and continue.

The Wysiwyg editor screen show:

Compatible Wiki mode Use wiki syntax for saved pages.

This is the most compatible with Tiki functionality and the most stable editor mode.

Tools and functions in the editor toolbar will be limited.

Full WYSIWYG editor is displayed by default : enable

So all is set and the wizard tells you that WYSIWYG will be used by default on the Wiki page.

Exit the wizard, edit the HomePage.

It is not WYSIWYG but Wiki syntax. The HomePage is created by the install process and an extra step is missing in the wizard (it should change the HomePage editor to WYSIWYG).

The wizard doesn't change the mode of existing pages, nor should it (imho)

I understand your point Jonny and it sound right as we don't know when the wizard will be used. It can be on the first load of the Tiki or after several pages have been created.

A notice at `tiki-wizard_admin.php?&stepNr=5` should be the answer then, something like:

"Note that changing the text editor type won't be applied on the page(s) that have already been created by authorized users or by the installation process (like the HomePage). To change the text editor type on existing page you'll have to do it manually page by page by opening them and clicking on the text editor icon  on the toolbar and save the page."

Good ?

Maybe it does make sense to change the home page over to use wysiwyg if the non-html mode is chosen to help new admins, shouldn't be too tricky... under an hour anyway (reminder to self: get the page data and call \TikiLib::update_page setting wysiwyg to true)

After, and thanks to your comment I checked a bit more wizard usage. And yes, the wizard can be used anytime.

Meaning it can be used as the first step of the installation (only HomePage is created, may be a few other from profile applied) or years after the Tiki was set (with many pages) (unlikely the way to use this, but who knows).

So it would be nice if we can check "when" the wizard is used and have some cases:

- If there is only a HomePage never touched (first install), it is applied (or any "marker" that says it is a new install):
- If there are other pages we can:
  - Remark that existing page won't be modified to avoid disruption
  - Add a checkbox: "Do you want to apply on all existing pages ?" (warning about it)

If too complicate and we are getting too far with this we can get back to adding a note. (won't be applied on existing page).

+1 to have a simple and short text added wherever it's needed, like what you say, Bernard:

"It won't be applied on existing pages"
