Description

I can make a user menu, but it doesn't display in the application menu. (This regression may have happened in an earlier Tiki version - probably it did, but I don't know when.)

Solution

Not really a fix but warning added to the pref in r64819

Workaround

Not a workaround but an explanation - looks like the code has been removed out lost in the intervening years.

In setup/usermenu.php the data gets assigned to $usr_user_menus in smarty... i suggest we mark it as borken and add it to Endangered Features

I checked again in branch 18 on Dec. 6, 2017 to confirm that it's still broken. I can make a menu item but it doesn't display in the application menu or anywhere else. I agree that it might as well be added to Endangered Features, unless it would do something that can't be done by making a menu with a wiki page and displaying it with a module, or the equivalent.
