Description

Infinite scroll automatically loads more articles or posts as the user scrolls down the page, so it isn't necessary to click to retrieve the next article/post. This is a popular feature used at many news and other websites, and would be a nice enhancement for Tiki sites.

One possibility (maybe leading contender, though others could be evaluated) is https://infiniteajaxscroll.com. For open source projects this is available under the MIT license (so ok for Tiki). It's also listed at packagist.org (https://packagist.org/packages/webcreate/jquery-ias).

I dare to oppose. It is IMHO not a "popular feature" but quite the opposite. To me, infinite scrolling is hell. You lose all control over how much content you had so far, how much lies ahead of you, and you cannot deep link or set bookmarks/favorites, because you lose pagination.

Infinite scrolling (to me) is the #1 reason to never revisit a website...

If you do add such a feature, at least DO NOT make it a default.
