Description

I can't make a simple PluginWysiwyg call to work as expected in Tiki18 (afaik it worked as expected up to Tiki16 at least; I didn't try in Tiki17).

```
{WYSIWYG()} foo {WYSIWYG}

Using wiki plain text editor.

Unluckily, I have NOT been able to reproduce the issue in a show.t.o instance

<http://xavi-9794-6661.show.tikiwiki.org/tiki-index.php?page=Community>

(it works as expected there)

And I've noticed that if I clone the same page contents from my production site to a page in the show.t.o instance, the issue can't be reproduced: admin user can open the wysiwyg editor coming from the plugin wysiwyg.

And if I add perms to the page in my production site so that anons can edit the wiki page, the issue vanishes

Odd, after adding and removing perms in that page in my production site, I can't reproduce the issue any more. :-/

Ok, I'll close this bug report, with a tag "works for me". Who knows what was going on.
