I don't know how to propose a fix.

But I found out there's a missing declaration in tiki-editpage.php between 1537-1538

```
missing declaration
```

```
$histlib = TikiLib::lib('hist');

Thanks for your report, and proposal of fix, Sandrine. In order to add your proposed fix to the code, you need commit access to the svn repository (see this), or fork and make a pull/merge request (if you are used to git workflows).

Otherwise, someone will eventually test your fix and commit it if there are no side effects (I guess not, but I didn't test and I don't know enough php before hand, sorry)

I had to re-set the pass of your show2.t.o instance to be able to log in your instance (thanks for creating it) and do reproduce the issue indeed (I saw a white screen of death, which is usually related to an error 500 indeed). I'll test locally in my computer later today if I have a chance.

fixed in r70461 in 20.x. Thanks again Sandrine Marquis. You could update your show2.t.o instance (you have a button to perform a svn update on the show instance underlying svn revision, and confirm that the issue is fixed. If so, edit your bug report and change status to closed, and set "Resolution status" to Fixed. Thanks and welcome to the Tiki Community! 😊

Thank you for the warm welcome and I'll check and see if it's fixed on the next version.

it's working on the update intance. So, I'll set the "resolution Status" to fixed. Thx Again.

Hello, I'm having the same problem on a Tiki install of about two weeks ago. I'm not a developer. Can you tell me what code I need to fix/add in the "tiki-editpage.php" to get translations to work for me? Thank you!

Fabian Wagmister 27 Jul 19 13:13 GMT-0000

Got it fixed!
