Description

When you create PDF using Tiki (mPDF) using the wikitopline it take a little time and page is not staying on position but moving top.

If the wikitopline is not on the top of the page (and usually it is moved it down or remove it with bootstrap and mobile) the user won't see the feedback unless he scroll to find it.

The problem is that from the user point of view it is like nothing is happening and he will likely think the feature is not working.

It could be a modal over the screen so all case (mobile) are covered.
