Description

In the update wizard /templates/wizard/upgrade_others.tpl there is this:

```
{tr}You can prevent that unresponsive time by means of setting Tiki to store notification emails in an email queue (see Settings > Control Panels > General > General Preferences > Mail > Mail sender > STMP, and Mail Delivery > Queue), and request the server to process the email sending based on a cron job{/tr}.
```

Of course that should be SMTP 😊

Oh, by the way, IMHO it could be a little confusing for newbie admins that General has (among others) two tabs:

General Settings and General Preferences... Think about renaming one of them...

I agree it's confusing.

What is recommended course of action?

Merge in one tab?

Or rename to what and what?

Thanks!
