Description

From my understanding, the time (or several times) recorded inside the tracker field duration are some kind of "independent" entity inside a tracker item.

IMO, we should have option(s) to "lock" the time recorded to avoid further changes after an action is done.

IE: If I record the work time of someone and if at some point it is approved or validated it should be locked and only an Admin (or a user with permission) would be able to change it or unlock the entry.

by extension may be something simple can be done as a start with the tracker item status.

If open (or open and pending) it can be changed else immutable.

If the item is close durations recorded can't be changed.
