Description

Hi,

in the past couple of days I had severe problems to log in to d.t.o. First, it kept complaining that cookie consent would be required. I have always had d.t.o. in my list of exceptions.

Therefore I entirely disabled the "improved activity tracking block" of my Firefox (84.0.2 running on Linux Mint 18.3.), but it kept complaining.

After filing a note on tiki.org (where I could log in with no problems at all), and several days with no replies, I tried d.t.o. again. Then it complained about a mismatch of the security token with that on the server, with the remark "reloading might help". It did not. Not immediately. Upon the third reload, with a cache clear and a restart of Firefox, it finally worked...
