Description

Following the doc at <https://doc.tiki.org/PluginActivityStream> I set activity stream and login as admin to create my first rules.

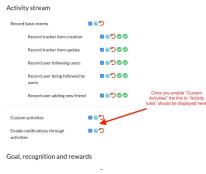

At tiki-admin.php?page=community#contentadmin_community-2 I enabled Custom activities and apply.

I was expecting something to be visible, a button to add or create my first rule but the screen stays put.

I retried again and activate everything but nothing else was displayed.

I re-look at the video to understand that at the top of the page (not visible when you are looking at the Activity Stream options) they were a link, that was always there "Activity Rules" that goes to an external page, <https://next.tiki.org/tiki-managestream-list>

This implementation is different from most of what we find in Tiki Administration and really not user friendly for a new admin or someone discovering the feature. While it is ok to have on the top it should be also visible near the direct related option "Custom activities" checkbox as soon as you enable it.

Another thing that would be nice is to be informed of the existence and eventually the number of rules that have been created.

For example, and to make it small, near the Activity Rules link a badge with the number of existing custom activity rules. (0 for none is good to indicate no rule have been made yet)
