Description

Would it be possible to list the contents of a directory not in /var/www/tiki, but generated from a crontab output file and stored in the /var/www/tiki directory. This would be to facilitate having a daily or hourly updated view of project files associated with the tikiwiki documentation. If this doesn't sound like a good global feature I would love to get some pointers as to where I would place the php code in what tiki file etc to get this working in my own project.
