Description

It seemed to happen in 24.2 all of a sudden, so I upgraded to 25.0 to see if it would fix the issue but no, I can no longer attach an image to a wiki page using either the button at the bottom of the page or the button in the file galleries section. So I figure tiki is confused in a database setting.

All files are stored in a directory that has worked just fine previously

Solution

~~The attach button on dev.tiki.org did work either so i figured firefox was broken, downloaded chrome and tiki now works fine.~~

I tried switching from nvidia driver to the neouve Xorg video driver and the choose file button is still inactive on my own tiki25x and also on this dev.tiki.org site.

I tried chrome and opera but they just freeze after clicking on the choose file button

Looks like I lost this functioning for Gmail attachments too so its a bug with my browser.
