Description

When you edit a very long content and or you want to test your editing preview is not always as handy as opening the page in a second tab or a second browser.

In both case, being able to save (as you go) while staying in editing mode would be a great option.

May be there is such option somewhere (I recall something in the WYSIWYG toolbar) but, it is not available out of the box from the main button bar (Preview, Save, cancel).

That would really help people with the "timeout" and loss of content when they are editing a very long page with a lot of content.
