Description

When user have multilingual site enabled and edits a page e.g. in English called Foo and adds an image there using the IMG plugin syntax, then creates translation of the page in another page called Foo2 in the other language and then tries to edit one of the associated pages via the IMG plugin helper icon, it saves nicely but - the page loses the language assigned back to the "Unknown" and that breaks the translation association and it is not possible to set it back because it yells an error that that translation already exists or something like that...
