Description

Plugin Convene should suggest by default the username of the user viewing the page as the one to be added.

With long lists of users, like in t.o, browser becomes slow due to the building of the long users list. It' would be way easier for most use cases if your own username was provided there as a suggestion (for logged in users) so that user just needed to click at "+" button.

I think it does that if you're not a (wiki) admin?

Yes, I think so too, but it should not hurt if it preselected for an admin as well.

If you're an admin just click the "add user" button and it'll fill in your username (sorry, undocumented feature 😊)
